Do you have the luck of the Irish?

When I sent out the message from God from the last group clearing call yesterday, I mentioned a desire to elaborate on the work we do to better understand you and how you are created and operate. This work supports your best you evolving. But, becoming a spiritual healer and working for Heaven, I have learned many things never taught in my basic upbringing and maybe not yours either.

In the interim, I realized today, however, is St. Patrick's Day. I couldn't let that go by without addressing. But, rather than discuss St. Patrick specifically, I want to focus on the saying you often hear in conjunction with March 17, "the luck of the Irish".

Here's a little history of "the luck of the Irish" The phrase originated in the United States and has been referred to as both bad luck as well as good luck. It was used to describe the sad and tragic history of the people of Ireland. The Irish people are actually very unlucky as they had to leave their homeland in order to survive. Many of the original Irish settlers in the US, the UK and Australia never saw their family again.

I have cleared with Irish history over the years as it related to the past lives of clients. I have cleared the potato famine on more than just a few occasions. When clearing memories of poverty, it was a topic that came up as a memory to be cleared. When you clear memories of poverty or bad luck, you release the subconscious fears and limiting beliefs that come from those prior experiences and sabotage your desired results.

Further background on the phrase comes from days of mining and the Irish who were miners. The phrase 'Luck of The Irish' originated in by the people of America who described the Irish emigrants who found their 'Pot of Gold' in the Gold and Silver mines. Were they lucky or was their luck down to sheer hard work? Perhaps a bit of both, a case of being in the right place at the right time? Is this luck or fortune?

Mining is another topic that has come up for clients as well as gambling which was also associated with some of the discussion of the "luck of the Irish". Clearing all these concepts brings everyone into balance by releasing the negative memories or karma associated with the subjects.

But, what if want to increase your luck?

1. Let go of all negative memories as they limit your outcomes and lower your vibration.
2. Raise your vibration as high as possible as the higher it is, the better the results you automatically attract.
3. Live in the moment following inspiration.
4. Operate from your heart, which is how you connect with infinite intelligence.
5. And, mostly, surrender to the will of God as you can't get any luckier than being connected to and guided by the all knowing who is the supplier of all the resources.

And, if you are Irish today and celebrating, may your day be lucky.

Wishing you a wonderful weekend.

Faithfully yours,

Joy
