YOUR PURPOSE

The time is coming for all to take their rightful place in the world. Everyone is here on a mission and with a purpose. There is no one here by accident or without purpose.

The purpose you chose to fulfill at this time may be very different than your current work or job. It may be very different than those who have shared your path to date. You may now find yourself feeling called to do something but unclear as to exactly what that is. You may find yourself uprooted and compelled to move somewhere else or do something else. Something within you has a yearning to explore something new.

What I say to you now, I say to you with great reverence. Your being here is significant and chosen. You wanted to be here at this time. This time, in particular, is important to you on some level even if you aren't clear as to what that reason may be.

That yearning, inspiration or calling is part of the self that is reaching out to you to follow that which you decided to do upon evaluating your place on earth when choosing to come here. You wanted to be here now and you wanted to do something specific while here.

You may be working out some karmic lesson and you are being drawn to fulfill that opportunity to learn and grow to expand your consciousness and evolve as a human. You may feel called to perform a specific service to help humanity in some regard. You have a feeling and, therefore, you also have the resources to fulfill your destiny.

There are no accidents that you are here with certain preferences, skills and talents. The faster you commit to discovering or fulfilling your destiny taking your rightful place in the world, the more the world will be in balance. You have a role to fill.

That role is not always income producing. It is not always a notable or well known role.

Her pro bono work focuses on a global peace and prosperity initiative healing the cause of the imbalances to atrocities of life affecting all.

YOUR COMPASS

I have noticed that I attract a clientele that are old souls here for a purpose. Unfortunately, they are not always clear what that purpose may be. They just know there is something they are here to do. What I do in our sessions, is clear the past memories, thoughts, beliefs and fears that may be holding them back from recognizing or accepting what that purpose may be.

During my work, I sometimes make discoveries that open up a pathway for all and especially for my other clients. One of those discoveries has been an internal compass. I can actually tune in and see an actual compass. Each person's compass appears differently to me. Some are broken. Some are covered in crud. Some don't have movement.

As I tune in, I know what needs to be cleared from their past. When I clear the compass, it opens the possibility for the client to more naturally go in the right direction. It helps them more easily know or choose their right path.

I love when I make these discoveries because when it reveals itself in one client session, I can then apply it in my other client sessions and everyone wins.

After the first discovery, I immediately scheduled time for myself to look at my own. Having the opportunity to see these things gives evidence of areas that may be holding any one of us back subconsciously in ways we don't even realize.

If you are someone who is challenged with direction or knowing what your purpose is, your compass may be in need of repair.

Feel free to schedule a free "get acquainted" call to discuss how clearing the compass can work for you.
