Wisdom of the Guardian

The Real Issues of Love

I set up my protocol for serving my clients in a way that helps them clear their energy and align and balance them before we begin focusing on the issues at the time. After we open with that basic energy clearing and balancing, it is customized to the client's needs at the time.

I had a recent session with a client who had an issue surface regarding a current romantic relationship. Archangel Faith stepped in and gave us a message that took us by surprise because she went to the core of the matter. The following is her message, which useful to all in many ways. It discusses the real issue rather than the perceived issue.

The mention given of the light within also speaks to a new workshop that I will be giving on reigniting the light, which is a specialized process that I have been gifted to share with humanity.

I delivered it once already in the bootcamp I gave for Transformation Summit and look forward to sharing it more broadly in the days to come. Enjoy her insights...

Wishing you a wonderful weekend.

Faithfully yours,
Joy

The Problem Behind Romantic Love - Archangel Faith

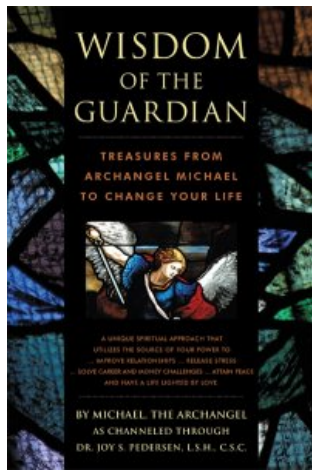

The real core issue with self-love is that it is addressing the separation from Source. The original separation from Source is where all pain and suffering started. Love of self is really the love of source as one and the same.

When we look outside of ourselves in our efforts to learn and discern what was different about life alone or in comparison to life connected to Source, we learn to go outside of ourselves and that's where problems occurred. That's when the judgment came. When we began comparing ourselves to others, judgment of self and problems with self love began.

Those that took power, created rules and standards by which fellow men were to adhere. When we did not meet those rules and standards, we became judged and punished contributing to loving ourselves less. So, over the lifetimes of not meeting other people's standard and rules and sometimes our own standards and rules, we became more judgmental and accumulated those judgments about how we were wrong or bad, which diminished our love of self. As we diminished our love of self, we created even more separation from Source because Source and self are one.

As we heal that pain of separation from Source and all that occurred along the way, you heal and restore your love of self and restore self to love. So, that's when the core issue pattern and programming began. So, although this conversation started about romantic love, I was guided to focus on self-love. This is why the dynamics exists from within where the self-love needs to be healed because it's really the self-love that needs to be healed first in order for all love to be healed and, of course, it is reflected then in a romantic relationship. Anyone who wants to heal a romantic relationship needs to start with self-love first and heal within themselves their separation from Source.

Once their separation from Source is healed, and they have oneness from themselves and unconditional love for themselves, the issues in relationships as far as who will love somebody is erased. The person who is meant to love you because it's purposeful at this time will recognize the love you have within as whole and complete and that flame will be so bright they can't miss it. In any other case where the person is not healed completely and within themselves, that's when they attract relationships that will bring it up for them. It is those issues that need to be cleared from the past that reflect the pain of separation from Source that culminated in whatever problems were experienced and those memories that are held within that attract some aspect of that programming that came out of it to be ending up with being reflected in that relationship.

So, when guided to clear self-love, that's really the core of the issue. It's not about a judgment standard or conditions about you being lovable. It's really the love of self-love and Source that's whole and complete that will allow for the right relationship to be effortless and then to recognize you for whom you are because your flame will be so bright you can't miss it. So, what we want to heal at the moment is the separation from Source, the love of self, the damages that occurred to the love of self when we were separated from Source at the beginning when coming here. When we came here, our flames were diminished, our light was diminished so we could be in this darkened planet and learn the lessons that came from separation from source.

So, it is at this time that flame can be re-ignited, healed and restored from within and the connection to Source can be purified and all can become one with Source from within. So, that's where the healing is regarding self-love and what we need to clear today is that aspect of healing separation from Source restoring self-love to oneness and reigniting that light from within where you and Source are one.

And, you not only have self-love, you have the love of all, the love of all is from within from Source so you become one with all and you are restored to love. So, that's where the purpose of this healing today is to do, it is to heal that aspect of the self-love to restore you to oneness with Source within, love of all so all is one and within. So, in this effort to heal self-love, we are healing the love of self-love and all, and Source as one.
